What do participants get out of attending?

- A chance to meet, socialize, and talk about issues with other young fishermen from around the state, as well as established fishing industry leaders.

- Three days of training in the land-based aspects of running a fishing operation: business management, Alaska seafood markets, the fisheries regulatory process, and understanding the science of fisheries management.

- Special focus on the Alaska legislature and commercial fisheries, as well as the International Pacific Halibut Commission, which will also be meeting in Juneau January 25–29, 2016.
